The site may use Personally Identifiable Information (Name, e-mail, address, phone number) subject to the terms of this privacy policy. We don't sell, barter, or rent the information collected to third parties. How we collect and store information depends on the section of the site you're visiting, the activities you take part and the services you select. For example, you may need to provide some personal info in order to access certain features or services, such as news bulletins, mailers or when you open a sports betting account. You may also need to provide information when you take part in contests or to access interactive areas of our site. Similar to many other sites, MervCF Limited also accrues info through the use of tools such as cookies and tokens that recognize and hold information from every visit. The cookie may also store the visitor's username and password, sparing members from having to re-enter their credentials each time they visit the site. It also keeps track of the number of visitors and their actions while visiting the web page. In some cases, visitors and site members can choose not to provide us with information, for example by changing the browser settings to reject the use of cookies, but if you do, then you may be unable to access some services or may be asked to re-enter your account information. What we do with the collected info Similar to other online lottery services, MervCF Limited collects information to enhance your visit and deliver a more individualized experience. The aggregated information (information that does not personally identify users) may be used in several ways. For example, information regarding usage patterns can be combined with other info obtained from multiple users to help enhance our site and services. This helps MervCF Limited to learn which pages are visited most or what features are most attractive and to communicate with customers about their registration and customization preferences. Certain third parties who provide technical support for the operation of our site (our Web hosting service for example) may access such information. Although, we will only use this information as permitted by law in these cases.
